LDRK Troop 285 JUNIOR LEADERSHIP TRAINING 2017

Issue #2 Week 2

From the Scribe:

"A Scout is Cheerful" sure came in handy for us! Week 2 started off bright and VERY early at 7:30 am. Unfortunately the school did not know we would be so very dedicated to be there quite so early and the gates were not open. That did not faze our dedicated staff or our committed participants. Everyone cheerfully entered the school and quickly got to the lessons of the day!

The lesson of the day included Truong Khanh, Truong Tu and Truong Ngoc sharing with our junior leaders some of the "Tools of the Trade"—the leadership trade that is. These are some skills that are indispensable to leaders.

Truong Khanh started us off with a lesson in Communications. Effective communicating should include active listening and feedback. Who knew that building legos without effective communication could be so hard?

Truong Ngoc shared with us how important it is to be good at planning. POLC—Planning, Organizing, Leading, Controlling—all the elements of good management. Remember the "Ws" when you are creating a plan: Who, What, Why, and When.

Truong Tu finished off the module with a framework to make training more effective—EDGE. This is a training method that has shown to be effective in helping scouts to learn. Explain, Demo, Guide, and Enable—this gives you the EDGE to being a great instructor!
